Module 7: Intersectional Democracy: Gender and Disability rights

Monday, February 9 at 7 pm ET

SUMMARY

This module examines how systemic inequalities related to gender and disability affect access to and participation in democracy. Participants will explore barriers that limit civic engagement and learn strategies to center marginalized voices. The module emphasizes inclusive civic education that empowers all individuals to engage meaningfully in democratic life.

OBJECTIVES

- Analyze how gender and disability-related inequalities impact access to democratic participation.
- Identify barriers that limit civic engagement for women, gender-diverse individuals, and people with disabilities.
- Apply strategies to center marginalized voices in civic education and democratic processes.
- Evaluate approaches for fostering inclusive and equitable participation in democracy.
